PRICE TRIAL NOW ON

Many Witnesses Have Been Subpoenaed and Many Exhibits Introduced

LITTLE INTEREST IS TAKEN

A Number of Prominent Attorneys Declare That it is Going to be Difficult to Prove Anything Against Price

The trial of former County Treasurer Lewis C. Price opened on Tuesday. At twelve o'clock the jury had been selected and the opening arguments started as soon as court convened after dinner. The following twelve men comprise the jury: C. J. Pettis, Oris Swenson, Otto Jahrend, J. T. McHugh, Albert Larson, David Erwin, Samuel Rothenbach, Wilson King, George Garrey, Henry Eggers, Herman Ensign, and J. Chamberlain.

It is generally thought that the trial will last for several days, and two of the most important witnesses slated to appear are E. B. Williams and W. S. Westlake. The defense will probably rely strongly upon the report of the auditors, which, it is claimed, laid no blame on Price.

Mrs. Fred Ames has been subpoenaed to act as witness against her husband's first assistant, and Miss Tad Santmeyer Mr. Ames' sister-in-law has also been subpoenaed to take the witness stand. James Marsalles and Charles Ames ex-deputies to the county treasurer, Carl P. Westerfield, present treasurer, Mr. Smiley, accountant for Young & Co., and Lew Hendee, county clerk, are the only witnesses who have taken the stand thus far.

By evidence introduced it has been shown that Lewis C. Price had active charge of drawing up the cash drawer register every evening, entries were made in accordance with dictations made by several attaches of the office. It was further shown that there were seven clerks employed in the county treasurers office who were empowered by Mr. Ames' alleged instructions to make payments from the cash drawer.

States Attorney Joslin of McHenry has taken active charge of the prosecution. It is anticipated that States Attorney Dady will deliver the arguments to the jury at the close of the case.

Already sixty exhibits have been introduced by the state. These exhibits include state warrants, record books and vouchers of various nature.

If, as has been asserted, several people had access to the till book and entries were made in several different handwritings, a number of prominent attorneys are of the opinion that it will be rather difficult to attach any blame onto Price.

It was expected all along that when the case finally came to trial that considerable interest would be shown and that the court room would be crowded at all times. This however is not the case, only a small number aside from those vitally interested in the matter seeming to pay any attention to it.

Two Trials.

A youth was going out to his first formal dinner party. His mother said: "Now don't forget your manners, James; be sure to say something complimentary when the food is passed." He endeavored to do so. When butter was served he remarked pleasantly: "This is pretty good butter, what there is of it." The remark was not well received; he saw that he had made a mistake, and he endeavored to correct it by saying, "And there's plenty of it, such as it is."

The Dog and the Flea.

Dog fanciers realize the difficulty of separating the animals from the fleas which often inhabit them. Few of the older methods are entirely satisfactory, but a Chicago electrical man is authority for the statement that the use of the vacuum cleaner is most efficacious.

Normal Children.

All proper children are destructive. That is their way of finding out what things are made of. But they get over it. It is not well to take their inconvenient activities too seriously. —George Hodges, in Atlanta.

PIONEER RESIDENT DEAD

Christopher Webb of Hickory Passes Away at Ripe Old Age

Friday morning, of last week, at 7:30 o'clock, Mr. Christopher Webb passed away at his home at Hickory. Brights disease coupled with the infirmities of age being the cause of his death.

Christopher H. Webb was born in Herkimer county, New York, in the year 1820, September 5. As a boy he received a common school education while working on his father's farm.

When 25 years of age he sought and won his life's companion who preceded him to that realm from whence no wanderer ever returns, Sept. 10, 1909.

It was in the spring of the same year, 1845, that he heard and heeded the "Call of the West," and came directly to Lake county, Ill., where two brothers, Thomas and Charles, had preceded him. From his brother he bought the place which he called home ever after. At one time Antioch Road was known as Webb St., two miles of it having belonged to the Webb brothers.

During his early days in Lake county he again listened to the "Call of the West" and in company with two friends started out with an ox team to California where he remained for three years working in the mines.

Though reticent in his later life, he was yet willing to tell of his long march across the prairie and desert, of his meetings with the Indians and his fight with wind and weather. A longing for home and wife brought him back to Lake county by way of the Pacific ocean and the Panama canal.

But for three years spent in California he has been a farmer all his life. Those who knew him will always remember his sturdy frame, his congenial disposition, his decisive speech and his rich bass voice.

As a farmer he was known far and wide for his ability in swinging the cradle. Few in his day could cradle wheat as he. Although never a member of a church he did a father's part in advising and encouraging his children to attend.

He leaves to mourn him one son, D. B. Webb, one daughter, Eva Webb, one granddaughter, Mrs. Mattie Edwards of Chicago, and two great grandchildren.

His death was not a sudden one as for the past two years he had been declining rapidly and the beginning of the end came about five weeks ago. For 36 hours before Death's Angel came he was without pain and without knowledge of things of this earth. The end came peacefully at the age of 90 years, 8 months and 7 days. Those who knew him best called him "Kitt" and to them "Kitt" will ever be his name.

The funeral services were held at the Hickory church at 2 o'clock Sunday, Rev. O. Z. Winker, assisted by Rev. A. O. Stixrud, having charge. The remains were laid at rest in the Hickory cemetery.

PROPHICIES THE DESTRUCTION OF WORLD BY FIRE

In the current issue of Leaves of Healing, Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva of Zion City asserts that the Biblical "gospel age" of earth is ending, and that the millennial age is close at hand, when those who do not believe will be consumed by fire. He says that in a former cycle water overwhelmed the earth because its people were so wicked and that now that all have been given a chance to believe, or nearly all, the gospel age is about to close. In this connection, he asserts, Zion City is the only place of refuge in the world for "God's people" and issues a call for the world to come to Zion City, the Mount Ararat of the Millennial age.

Where They Disagreed.

Meyerbeer and Rossini, in spite of all their rivalries, were the warmest of friends. Rossini once said: "Meyerbeer and I can never agree." When some one in surprise asked why, he replied: "Meyerbeer likes sauerkraut better than he does macaroni."

TO OPERATE BY THE 4TH OF JULY

Editor Palatine Enterprise is Confident Cars Will Run by that Date

PAYMENT SOCK NECESSARY

Taken as a Whole He Feels That the Progress of the Road Has Been Very Remarkable

The most oft repeated question heard on the street these days is "How is the Electric Road coming on?" Palatine people are anxiously waiting the date when the cars will run as so many of our people are stock holders the editor has taken pains to learn the exact condition of the road, its affairs and the outlook for the future, says the Palatine Enterprise, with reference to the Waukegan, Rockford and Elgin Traction Company.

The road is being built from the public's money and as is well known there are no big monied men to advance the money. It is a people's road and it can be built just as fast as the people pay in that money. Every bill has been paid, there is no indebtedness and the bank balance is in the neighborhood of $10,000. There still remains $78,000 to be paid in by the subscribers to stock which is ample to complete the line. $50,000 will pay for rails, ties and laying the same. The big steel companies sell steel rails for cash only and the money to meet bills of lading must be in the banks before goods are shipped. The more anxious the people are to have the road completed that more quicker will they pay up their stock which means operation in a short time.

The officers of the road believe in taking the stockholders into their confidence and the promptness with which they open their books for inspection shows that they are desirous of publicity and when they sent out notices this week asking for prompt payment of subscriptions they came out frankly and stated why it is very desirous that as many as possible pay their subscriptions in full. No man can expect to build a railroad on wind. It takes money and the sooner the money is paid in, that much sooner will the conductor cry out "All aboard."

The Event of the Season OPERA HOUSE, ANTIOCH Tuesday Evening, January 28, '96.

MR. C. A. MINER,

The Gifted Young Author, late of Wood's Theatre, Cincinnati, Ohio, in his highly emotional and society Drama, in five acts and prologue, entitled:

Driven from Home!

Under Auspices of Lotus Camp, No. 557, M. W. A.

There is an old adage to the effect that "history repeats itself" and this it seems has come true in regard to the play "Driven From Home" which is on this (Thursday) evening given in the Wilton opera house under the auspices of the Woodman band.

According to an article appearing in one of the old files of the Antioch News the same play was given under the auspices of the same order at the same place on Tuesday evening January 28, 1896, fifteen years ago. At that time the play was given by home talent under the supervision of Mr. C. A. Miner, author of the piece, who assumed two of the leading roles. The cast of characters was as follows:

Jacob Goosengimer, an old miser.....C. A. Miner
Harry Clifton, an escaped convict.....W. R. Williams
Edgar Jivers, a wolf in sheep's clothing.....F. K. Shotliff
George Stanley, afterwards Judge of the Criminal Court of New York.....C. A. Pitman, Jr.

MCCORMICK INTERESTED IN COLONY

Wealthy Lake Forester Called Dr. Watterson into Conference of Importance

MAY DONATE LARGE SUM

Wealthy Philanthropist May Endow the Lake County Tuberculosis Tent Colony at Waukegan

Cyrus McCormick, the rich Lake Forest man and one of the heads of the great McCormick Harvester company, has become interested in the Lake County Tuberculosis Institute at Waukegan.

It develops that, on Tuesday, Dr. Watterson, head of the tent colony and Dr. Bouton, had a conference with Mr. McCormick in Chicago in relative to the needs of the Lake county institution.

But the interesting and promising part of the conference was that Mr. McCormick himself asked Dr. Watterson for the conference, requesting him to meet him in Chicago to talk over the matter. Accordingly Dr. Watterson, accompanied by Dr. Bouton, kept the appointment Tuesday morning.

The two Waukegan doctors were enroute to the state medical convention at Aurora hence the outcome of their conference with the rich philanthropist is as yet unknown and officials of the colony and their friends will anxiously await word as to what Mr. McCormick said and expects to do.

The fact that Mr. McCormick himself asked for the conference shows that he is interested in the Lake county institution and that he evidently desires to become one of the supporters of it. Possibly he plans erecting a new building at the tent colony or may endow it. The latter concession is what the institute needs and, once that a wealthy man like Mr. McCormick does make an endowment, it means that the benevolent organization will be firmly established for all times to come and its good will at once become wider in scope.

Life's Limitations.

"Our present horizon is our greatest reach of sight, but unless we make our way toward it we shall never find a farther reach."

CONDUCTOR HAS POWER

To Make Arrests and May be Fined for Not Making Them

One of the bills to which the legislator from this district will "point with pride" during the next campaign and one which will well deserve the attention of the people of this district is that which was introduced through the efforts of the various traveling sales men's associations in the interests of the traveling public.

This bill, which will upon July 1 become a state law, provides for the equipping of every conductor of interurban or railroad trains with the same powers held by a sheriff. The new law provides for the arrest and punishment of any person using intoxicating liquor on board a car or in or around a station.

The first section of the law reads: "Any person who shall drink any intoxicating liquor, or who shall be intoxicated, in or upon any railroad smoking car, parlor coach, day coach, interurban coach, or caboose car in use for the transportation of passengers or in or about any railroad station or platform, upon convictions thereon, shall be fined not less than $25 nor more than $100, or imprisoned in the county jail for not less than 30 days, nor more than 100 days, or both such fine and imprisonment."

The second section says, in part: "Every railroad or interurban conductor, while on duty, is hereby authorized and empowered to exercise in any county of this state for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this act, all the common laws and statutory powers conferred upon sheriffs and it is hereby made the duty of all such conductors to enforce all sections of this act and to arrest without process or warrant any person who violates any provision thereof, and so doing, they shall be held to be acting for the state and not as an employee of the railroad company. Any such conductor who shall refuse or fail to comply with the requirements of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not less than $10 nor more than $25."

ZION LACE WORKS STRIKERS CANNOT RETURN TO WORK

According to a report there is no chance of any of the twenty-three girls who struck at the Marshal Field lace plant at Zion City Monday of ever entering the service of the company again. It is stated that the officials of the plant at Zion City received orders that the name of every girl who struck at the plant should be taken, and sent into the head offices.

In connection with this mandate from the headquarters of the company, an order was issued that upon no consideration should any of the girls ever be taken back into the employ of the company, and not only that but that in no plant over which the Marshal Field company has control will any of the girls ever find a place open for them.

The girls say, it is claimed, that the order placed them upon a veritable "black list," but that they would not go back, or ask any favors of any company which Marshal Field and company control.

When the walkout was first made known at the plant Monday, Manager Finn stated that it was thought that the girls would all be back to work, but now that the mandate has been received, that the girls shall not be taken back, their places will be filled with other. It is claimed that although the company offered at first to take back the girls, not a single girl from the ranks of the strikers appeared at the factory and asked to be taken back.

It is thought that the places of the strikers will all be filled by the first of the week, and the work in the handkerchief section of the big plant go on the same as before.

U. S. WILL MARK GRAVES OF SOLDIERS

Any Formerly Enlisted Soldier Or Sailor Is Entitled to Marker Now

600,000 MARKERS MADE

No Grave of Any Enlisted Man Need Remain Unmarked With Head Stones as Uncle Sam Has Enough for All

The United States government has provided 600,000 markers for the graves of soldiers. From two marble quarries, one at Lee, Mass., and one at Rutland, Vt., all these tombstones have been taken. Lee has furnished 300,000 markers in the last thirty-five years and is turning out gravestones at the rate of 20,000 a year.

Each marker is 3 feet long, 1 foot wide and 4 inches thick, and weighs 200 pounds. Just under the rounded top is outlined an inlaid shield and within this is cut the name, age, company, rank and regiment of the soldier, sailor or marine whose grave it is to mark.

From two quarries pits at Lee these stones are taken. On the grounds at the quarry they are cut, polished, marked and crated for shipment to a central distributing point. A force of twenty men is constantly employed by a contractor, who obtains his contract in competition semi-annually from the government.

A block of marble 3x3 feet is the average size used for headstones. It is run into the mill on a short truck and fastened under a gang of saws which slowly descends with a swinging motion and cuts through it. Then the block is rolled out, chained together, turned over and set through the same process again. The saws are simple bands of iron an eighth of an inch thick and the cutting is done by sand which is well wet and kept dripping on the work.

The next process is the coping or rounding one end of the marker and smoothing it by grinding with sand and water on a revolving iron table. The marker is then ready for lettering or numbering.

A government inspector examines every headstone and condemns all that have flaws or discolorations or are wrongly lettered. The discarded stones are in the main good marble and workmen cut them into what are known as marble bricks, which are used for building purposes.

Application blanks for these headstones are sent out from the quartermaster general's office. Any deceased soldier, sailor, marine, nurse or scout who served under regular enlistment may have his last resting place marked by the government on request of a relative, a grand army post or a private citizen.

The stones are shipped usually by the railroad to certain distributing points named by the war department. For the New England states Boston is the distributing place, New York for the middle states, Chicago for the middle west, Denver, San Francisco, Atlanta and Houston, Tex., are other points of shipment.

Washington has received the greatest number of these markers. Thousands have been set up in Arlington and other government cemeteries; how many no one seems to know.

Not only does the government furnish the tombstones free, but it pays the freight to its destination. All that has to be done when the stone has been delivered is to have it carried to the grave from the freight office and set up. Many grand army posts look after this.

Hundreds of stones have been supplied to mark the graves of women nurses who served in the civil war. Nearly all the applications come in the names of privates or sailors. Occasionally there is found the name of a line officer and there have been occasions when the grave of a staff officer has been marked. Two generals and perhaps a dozen colonels are buried in the cemeteries of the United States government and have over their graves the small white stones provided by the government.

Few of Unmixed Descent. Only one-tenth of the population of this country is of unmixed descent.

When a Man Marries

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Author of The Circular Staircase, The Man in Lower Ten, etc.

Copyright 1909, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

SYNOPSIS.

James Wilson or Jimmy as he is called by his friends, Jimmy was round and looked shorter than he really was. His ambition in life was to be taken seriously, but people stupidly refused to do so, his art is considered a huge joke, except to himself, if he asked people to dinner everyone expected a frolic. Jimmy marries Bella Knowles, they live together a year and are divorced. Jimmy's friends arrange to celebrate the first anniversary of his divorce. The party is in full swing when Jimmy receives a telegram from his Aunt Selma, who will arrive in four hours to visit him and his wife. He neglects to tell her of his divorce. Jimmy takes Kit into his confidence. He suggests that Kit play the hostess for one night, be Mrs. Wilson pro tem. Aunt Selma arrives and the deception works out as planned. Jimmy's Jap servant is taken ill. Bella, Jimmy's divorced wife, enters the house and asks Kit who is being taken away in the ambulance. Bella insists it is Jimmy. Kit tells her Jim is well and is in the house. Harbison steps out on the porch and discovers a man tacking a card on the door. He demands an explanation. The man points to the placard and Harbison sees that the word "Smaller" is printed on it. He tells him the guests cannot leave the house until the quarantine is lifted. After the lifting of the quarantine several letters are found in the mail box undelivered, one is addressed to Henry Lawless, Jr., another to Henry Lawless, Sr., written by Harbison. He describes minutely of their incarceration, also of his infatuation for Mrs. Wilson. Aunt Selma is taken ill with a gripe. Betty acts as nurse. Harbison finds Kit sulking on the roof. She tells him that Jim has been treating her outrageously, that she has come downstairs, when suddenly she is grasped in the arms of a man who kisses her several times. She believes that Harbison did it and is humiliated. Aunt Selma tells Jimmy that her cameo brooch and other articles of jewelry have been stolen. She accuses Betty of the theft. Jimmy tells Aunt Selma all about the strange happenings, but she persists in suspecting Betty of the theft. Harbison demands an explanation from Kit as to her conduct towards him. She tells him of the incident on the roof, he does not deny nor confirm her accusation.

CHAPTER XIII.—Continued.

"I think you are very rude," I said at last. "You fell over there and I thought you were killed. The nervous shock I experienced is just as bad as if you had gone—all the way."

He put down the hammer and came over to me without speaking. Then, when he was quite close, he said:

"I am very sorry if I startled you. I did not flatter myself that you would be profoundly affected, in any event."

"Oh, as to that," I said lightly, "it makes me ill for days if my car runs over a dog." He looked at me in silence. "You are not going to get up on that parapet again?"

"Mrs. Wilson," he said, without paying the slightest attention to my question, "will you tell me what I have done?"

"Done?"

"Or have not done? I have racked my brains—stayed awake all of last night. At first I hoped it was impersonal, that, womanlike, you were merely venting general disfavor on one particular individual. But—your hostility is to me, personally."

I raised my eyebrows, coldly interrogative.

"Perhaps," he went on, calmly—"perhaps I was a fool here on the roof—the night before last. If I said anything that I should not, I ask your pardon. If it is not that, I think you ought to ask mine!"

I was angry enough then.

"There can be only one opinion about your conduct," I retorted, warmly. "It was worse than brutal. It—it was unspeakable. I have no words for it—except that I loathe it—and you."

He was very grim by this time. "I have heard you say something like that before—only I was not the unfortunate in that case."

"Oh!" I was choking.

"Under different circumstances I should be the last person to recall anything so—personal. But the circumstances are unusual." He took an angry step toward me. "Will you tell me what I have done? Or shall I go down and ask the others?"

"You wouldn't dare," I cried, "or I will tell them what you did! How you waylaid me on those stairs there, and forced your caresses, your kisses, on me! Oh, I could die with shame!"

The silence that followed was as unexpected as it was ominous. I knew he was staring at me, and I was furious to find myself so emotional, so much more excited of the two. Finally, I looked up.

"You cannot deny it," I said, in a sort of anti-climax.

"No." He was very quiet, very grim, quite composed. "No," he repeated, judiciously. "I do not deny it."

He did not? He would not? Which?

CHAPTER XIV.

Almost, But Not Quite.

Dal had been acting strangely all day. Once, early in the evening, when I had doubled no trump, he led me a club without apology, and later on, during his dummy, I saw him writing our names on the back of an envelope, and putting numbers after them. At my earliest opportunity I went to Max.

"There is something the matter with Dal, Max," I volunteered. "He has been acting strangely all day, and just now he was making out a list—names and numbers."

"You're to blame for that, Kit," Max said seriously. "You put washing soda instead of baking soda in those biscuits today, and he thinks he is a steam laundry. Those are laundry lists he's making out. He asked me a little while ago if I wanted a domestic finish."

Yes, I had put washing soda in the biscuits. The book said soda, and how is one to know which is meant?

"I do not think you are calculated for a domestic finish," I said, coldly, as I turned away. "In any case I disclaim any such responsibility. But—there is something on Dal's mind."

Max came after me. "Don't be cross, Kit. You haven't said a nice word to me today, and you go around bristling with your chin up and two red spots on your cheeks—like where-his-name-was with the snakes-in-the-hair. I don't know why I'm so crazy about you; I always meant to love a girl with a nice disposition."

I left him then. Dal had gone into the reception room and closed the doors. And because he had been acting so strangely, and partly to escape from Max, whose eyes looked threatening, I followed him. Just as I opened the door quietly and looked in, Dallas switched off the lights, and I could hear him groping his way across the room. Then somebody—not Dal—spoke from the corner, cautiously.

"Is that you, Mr. Brown, sir?" It was Flannigan.

"Yes, is everything here?"

"All but the powder, sir. Don't step too close. They're spread all over the place."

"Have you taken the curtains down?"

"Yes, sir."

"Matches?"

"Here, sir."

"Light one, will you, Flannigan? I want to see the time."

The flare showed Dallas and Flannigan bent over the timepiece. And

The Mercer Girls Kissed Dal and Anne Was Furious.

It showed something else. The rug had been turned back from the windows which opened on the street, and the curtains had been removed. On the bare hardwood floor just beneath the windows was an array of pans of various sizes, dish pans, cake tins, and a metal foot tub. The pans were raised from the floor on bricks, and seemed to be full of paper. All the chairs and tables were pushed back against the wall, and the bric-a-brac was stacked on the mantel.

"Half an hour yet," Dal said, closing his watch. "Plenty of time, and remember the signal, four short and two long."

"Four short and two long—all right, sir."

"And—Flannigan, here's something for you, on account."

"Thank you, sir."

Dal turned to go out, tripped over the rug, said something, and passed me without an idea of my presence. A moment later Flannigan went out, and I was left, huddled against the wall, and alone.

It was puzzling enough. "Four long and two short!" "All but the powder!" Not that I believed for a moment what Max had said, and anyhow Flannigan was the sanest person I ever saw in my life. But it all seemed a part of the mystery that had been hanging over us for several days. I felt my way across the room and knelt by the pans. Yes, they were there, full of paper and mounted on bricks. It had not been a delusion.

And then I straightened on my knees suddenly, for an automobile passing under the window had sounded four short honks and two long ones. The signal was followed instantly by a crash. The foot bath had fallen from its supports, and lay, quivering and vibrating with horrid noises at my feet. The next moment Mr. Harbison had thrown open the door and leaped into the room.

"Who's there?" he demanded. Against the light I could see him reaching for his hip pocket, and the rest crowding up around him.

"It's only me," I quavered, "that is, I. The dish pan upset."

"Dish pan!" Bella said from back in the crowd. "Kit, of course!"

Jim forced his way through them and turned on the lights. I have no doubt I looked very strange, kneeling there on the bare floor, with a row of pans mounted on bricks behind me, and the furniture all piled on itself in a back corner.

to the pans, to the windows, to the bric-a-brac on the mantel, and back to me.

I sat stonily silent. Why should I explain? Whenever I got into a foolish position, and tried to explain, and tell how it happened, and who was really to blame, they always brought it back to me somehow. So I sat there on the floor and let them stare. And finally Lollie Mercer got her breath and said: "How perfectly lovely; it's a charade!"

And Anne guessed "kitchen" at once. "Kit, you know, and the pans and—all that," she said, vaguely. At that they all took to guessing! And I sat still, until Mr. Harbison saw the storm in my eyes and came over to me.

"Have you hurt your ankle?" he said in an undertone. "Let me help you up."

"I am not hurt," I said, coldly, "and even if I were, it would be unnecessary to trouble you."

"I cannot help being troubled," he returned, just as evenly. "You see, it makes me ill for days if my car runs over a dog."

Luckily, at that moment Dal came in. He pushed his way through the crowd without a word, shut off the lights, crashed through the pans and slammed the shutters close. Then he turned and addressed the rest.

"Of all the lunatics—I" he began, only there was more to it than that. "A fellow goes to all kinds of trouble to put an end to this miserable situation, and the entire household turns out and sets to work to frustrate the whole scheme. You like to stay here, don't you, like chickens in a coop? Where's Flannigan?"

Nobody understood Dal's wrath then, but it seems he meant to arrange the plot himself, and when it was ripe, and the hour nearly come, he intended to wager that he could break the quarantine, and to take any odds he could get that he would free the entire party in half an hour. As for the plan itself, it was idiotically simple; we were perfectly delighted when we heard it. It was so simple and yet so comprehensive. We didn't see how it could fail. Both the Mercer girls kissed Dal on the strength of it, and Anne was furious. Jim was so much pleased, for some reason or other, and Mr. Harbison looked thoughtful rather than merry. Aunt Selma had gone to bed.

The idea, of course, was to start an embryo fire just inside the windows, in the pans, to feed it with the orange-fire powder that is used on the Fourth of July, and when we had thrown open the windows and yelled "fire" and all the guards and reporters had rushed to the front of the house, to escape quietly by a rear door from the basement kitchen, get into machines Dal had in waiting, and lose ourselves as quickly as we could.

You can see how simple it was. Everyone rushed madly for motor coats and veils, and Dal shuffled the numbers so the people going the same direction would have the same machine. We called to each other as we dressed about Marmaroneck or Lakewood or wherever we happened to have relatives. Everybody knew everybody else, and his friends. The Mercer girls were going to cruise until the trouble blew over, the Browns were going to Pinehurst, and Jim was going to Africa to hunt, if he could get out of the harbor.

Only the Harbison man seemed to have no plans; quite suddenly with the world so near again, the world of country houses and steam yachts and all the rest of it, he ceased to be one of us. It was not his world at all. He stood back and watched the kaleidoscope of our coats and veils, half-quizzically, but with something in his face that I had not seen there before. If he had not been so self-reliant and big, I would have said he was lonely. Not that he was pathetic in any sense of the word. Of course, he avoided me, which was natural and exactly what I wished. Belle never was far from him, and at the last she loaded him with her jewel case and a muff and traveling bag and asked him to her cousins' on Long Island. I felt sure he was going to decline, when he glanced across at me.

"Do go," I said, very politely. "They are charming people." And he accepted at once!

AN ANTI-SUFFRAGETTE.

George Cavan Browne, the expert on international law, was discussing in Providence the Russell case.

"An American heiress," he said, "married an Italian, one Russell. He took her to Italy, treated her badly, then died and left all her money to his family. She, in consequence, is penniless. For, by Italian law, the wife's money, all of it, belongs to the husband."

"But aside from its legal aspect, consider the mean, mercenary spirit of this thing. Really, these foreign noblemen resemble Peleg Henderson of Appona."

"Peleg had two sweethearts, Shawomet girls, one of whom owned a cow. That was the one he married. He explained to his friends at the wedding: 'By crinist there ain't the difference of a cow between any two women living.'"

DICKINSON RESIGNS

HENRY L. STIMSON IS APPOINTED SECRETARY OF WAR BY PRESIDENT.

PRIVATE AFFAIRS THE CAUSE

Democratic Member of Taft's Cabinet Retires to Devote His Attention to Personal Business So Soon as His Successor Qualifies.

Washington.—The president announced the resignation from the cabinet of Jacob M. Dickinson as secretary of war and the appointment of Henry L. Stimson of New York as his successor. Mr. Dickinson was the Democratic member of the cabinet and Mr. Stimson was the candidate of the Republicans of New York for governor at the last election.

In the letters exchanged between the president and Mr. Dickinson no reason, other than that of pressing private affairs, is given for the secretary's retirement.

Mr. Dickinson will go to his Tennessee home immediately upon the qualification of his successor. He expects to devote his attention to business and will not return to the practice of law, in which he was engaged when President Taft appointed him in March, 1909. He is the second member of Mr. Taft's cabinet to retire to private life. Secretary of the Interior Ballinger having severed his connection with the president's official family only a few months ago.

Coincident with the announcement of Mr. Dickinson's retirement came that of the appointment of C. S. Millington of Herkimer, N. Y., to be assistant treasurer of the United States in New York. Mr. Stimson was the Roosevelt candidate for governor, while Mr. Millington was a former member of the house for the Twenty-seventh New York district, and is a close friend of Vice-President Sherman and other leaders of the old guard in the state, having succeeded Mr. Sherman in the house when the latter became vice-president.

325 LIVES ARE IMPERILED

Fruit Steamer Rams and Sinks Liner Merida, But All on Board Are Saved.

Norfolk, Va.—The passengers and crew of the New York and Cuban Mail Steamship company's liner Merida, sunk after a collision with the United Fruit company's steamship Admiral Farragut off Cape Henry, arrived here safe, after being twice transhipped.

Not a soul was lost and only one person, a woman passenger, was slightly injured.

Both vessels were steaming at full speed in opposite directions through a fog bank about fifty-five miles east of the Virginia Capes when the Admiral Farragut rammed the Merida.

A great hole was torn in the side of the Merida, which carried 197 passengers and a crew of 128, and it was instantly realized by the officers when the sea began to pour into the vessel's hold that she could not live.

In five hours the Merida was at the bottom of the ocean, but her passengers and crew were safely aboard the Admiral Farragut.

By wireless telegraph the Old Dominion Steamship company's steamship Hamilton, bound from New York to Norfolk, was summoned by the Admiral Farragut, took aboard the rescued passengers and crew of the Merida and landed them in Norfolk.

Denver, Colo.—Two killed and at least twenty-five injured, several seriously, comprise the casualties resulting from the derailment of west-bound Denver & Rio Grande passenger trains near Mintern, 30 miles west of Leadville.

The wreck was caused by spreading rails. The rails gave way after the engine and baggage car had passed and the weight of the heavy Pullman cars caused the day coach and tourist sleeper to buckle up and roll down the 15-foot embankment into the Eagle river.

DEADLOCK IN SENATE

GALLINGER FAILS OF ELECTION AS PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE.

Bacon Gets Democrat Vote—Situation Results From the Opposition of Insurgent Republicans—Three Paired.

Washington.—The incapacity of the Republican party in the senate to control a caucus edict without the aid of the insurgents was demonstrated in the senate when, after more than two hours of effort, and as a result of seven ballots that bddy failed to elect Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire as president pro tempore to succeed Senator Frye of Maine.

Mr. Frye's recent resignation was based on poor health. The deadlock was due to the opposition of the insurgent Republican senators, five of whom voted against and three of whom were paired against Mr. Gallinger.

Soon after the senate convened Vice-President Sherman presented himself from the senate and Senator Lodge assumed the chair. Immediately Senator Cullom, as the chairman of the Republican caucus, moved that the senate proceed to the election of a president pro tempore, placing Mr. Gallinger in nomination. The nomination of Senator Bacon of Georgia by Senator Martin, chairman of the Democratic caucus, followed. Senator La Follette performed the same service for Senator Clapp.

Upon the first ballot it was apparent that when the insurgents did not cast their votes against Mr. Gallinger they were so paired as to render effective the votes of absentees.

Senator Borah announced his desire to vote for Gallinger, but stated that owing to a pair with Senator Works, who was unfriendly to Senator Gallinger, he could not do so. Later he stated that this pair had not been arranged to injure the New Hampshire senator. Mr. Dixon was paired with Mr. Cummins and Mr. Kenyon with Mr. Bourne.

The first ballot totaled 73 votes, of which Mr. Bacon, the Democratic candidate, received 35; Mr. Gallinger, the Republican candidate, 32, and Mr. Clapp, 4, while Mr. Bacon voted for Mr. Tillman and Mr. Clapp for Mr. Bristow.

Messrs. Bristow, La Follette, Gronna and Polindexter voted for Clapp. Messrs. Cummins, Bourne, Works and Crawford, insurgents, were all absent, but paired for Senator Clapp, except Mr. Crawford, who was ill. All the Democratic votes were cast for Mr. Bacon. Necessary to a choice, 37. The only change in the second ballot was that Senator Gallinger, who had refrained from voting on the previous roll call, voted for Mr. Lodge, increasing the total vote to 74, and making 38 necessary to elect.

COL. HIGGINSON IS DEAD

Noted Author's Death Was Due to General Breakdown Incident to Old Age.

Cambridge, Mass.—Col. Thomas Wentworth Higginson, historian and author, minister and soldier, one of the last of the group of famous scholars and abolitionists of half a century ago, died at his home here last night, aged eighty-seven years.

Colonel Higginson had been ill about ten days. A general breakdown due to old age was the cause of death. He is survived by a widow and one daughter, Mrs. J. D. Barney of Boston.

Colonel Higginson was almost the last of that New England coterie, which included Longfellow, Whittier, Holmes, Emerson and Lowell. He was also one of the anti-slavery agitators or abolitionists with Garrison, Wendell Phillips, Edward Everett Hale and Mrs. Julia Ward Howe.

He was born in Cambridge in 1823. After graduating from Harvard, in 1841, he studied in the divinity school, and took charge of a Unitarian church at Newburyport, Mass. In less than ten years, however, he left the ministry in order to give himself up more entirely to literary pursuits.

At about that time the anti-slavery agitation was raging and young Higginson, always ready to defend the oppressed, plunged into the fight, and with all the ardor of youth took upon himself the championship of the rights of the negro, even aiding to the best of his power in the rescue of fugitive slaves. When the Civil war broke out he enlisted as captain in the Fifty-first Massachusetts, and afterward became colonel of the First South Carolina volunteers, which was the first corps of freed slaves mustered into government service.

Colonel Higginson for many years had been an almost constant contributor to periodicals.

Backache Means Dying Kidneys

How You May Cure Yourself Quickly and Thoroughly.

Every man and woman should know that backache is usually a well-defined symptom of advancing kidney disease which may end fatally unless treated in time; that rheumatism and bladder trouble are caused from nothing more nor less than kidneys that do not filter the poison from the blood.

Once they are made to work properly, these diseases should quickly disappear. This is done by the new treatment, Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills.

We urge everyone who has pain in the small of the back, profuse or scanty urination, pains in the bladder, cloudy or foul urine, not to fail to get a package today of Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills, and drop all other kidney treatments.

Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills are now sold at all drug stores—25 and 50 cents, or direct from Dr. Derby Medicine Co., Eaton Rapids, Mich. If you would like to try them first, ask your druggist for a free sample package. Then buy a package; you will not regret it.

LOST FAITH IN WHITE MAN

Eskimo Tested Efficacy of Telephone Scheme, and Realized He Had Been Deceived.

An interesting story is told regarding the efforts of an Eskimo to construct a telephone line. The Eskimo came into possession of a piece of wire of considerable length and never having seen wire before he asked Professor McMillan of the Peary north pole expedition what it was and what it was for. He was told that the white man strung it on poles stuck in the ground and a voice talking to an instrument at one end could be heard at the other end. After some search the next morning the Eskimo was found to be engaged in telephone construction work of his own. He stuck some sticks in the ground and hung his wire on them. He held one end of the wire to his mouth and talked to it at the top of his voice. Then he ran as fast as he could to the other end and held the wire to his ear with the expectation of hearing his own words repeated.

When he failed to hear any sounds the expression on his face revealed his opinion of his white friend.

Socially Lame.

In his native town Jimmy had always been most popular with young and old, but when he was sent away to boarding school, he was for a time too homesick to make friends. His first letter was little more than a wall.

"I'm way behind the other boys in everything," he wrote, dolefully, "I'm not only studies, but it's gymnastics and banjos and everything. I don't believe they'll ever have much use for me."

But the second letter, written after a week in the new school, was quite different in tone.

"I'm all right," he wrote to his mother. "The boys say they're proud to have me here. I can stretch my mouth half an inch wider than any other boy in school, and my feet are the longest by a full inch. So you needn't worry about me any more."—Youth's Companion.

FEED YOUNG GIRLS Must Have Right Food While Growing.

Great care should be taken at the critical period when the young girl is just merging into womanhood that the diet shall contain that which is up-building and nothing harmful.

At that age the structure is being formed and if formed of a healthy, sturdy character, health and happiness will follow; on the other hand unhealthy cells may be built in and a sick condition slowly supervene which, if not checked, may ripen into a chronic condition and cause life-long suffering.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

SPEAKER NO LONGER IS RULER

WASHINGTON.—As steam is to the engine, so is the committee on rules to the national house of representatives. True, the speaker has been thrown off the committee, and no longer has actually control of it; nevertheless the committee retains what the speaker has lost. Joseph G. Cannon dominated the rules committee of the Sixty-first congress and through it the house, where the majority followed the committee with supine docility.

A body designed to invent instruments by which the formal rules of the house may be temporarily and deftly broken, yet broken without ceasing a particle of advantage to the minority, the rules committee, is the most interesting of the house committee groups. The great ways and means committee, in its dual function as tariff-bill framer and as committee on committees, prepares the political pathway for the house majority on which it must travel to victory or defeat. The mighty appropriations committee, acting as a board of directors of the government bank and as the regulator of public expenditures, does a non-partisan and truly patriotic service to the entire government. But the rules committee, which ranks equally with the two named before—carrying out the figure of the house as a locomotive—must in itself generate the power that thrills the whole machine with life and motion and enables it to travel safely along the legislative highway.

The engineer of this locomotive committee is Representative Robert Lee Henry of Texas. His is the hand that must close on the levers at the right time, and his is the hand that must sound the warning whistle and apply the brakes and take the upgrades on the high speed and the down-grades conservatively and with caution. Being responsible for the locomotive's progress, he is accordingly responsible for the entire train of committee cars behind him, and piloting them and their precious cargo to a safe destination is his huge work.

SHOWS HOW LAZY A CLERK CAN BE

THE lazy government clerk has so long been a standard type in current fiction that his fellow, the lazy bureau chief, is often utterly neglected. Of course, the bureau chief is fewer and farther between than the clerk, and his laziness is thereby not quite so apparent.

It was a pleasant spring afternoon in a nameless government office. The town clocks were striking three. The sunshine lay warm and brilliant across old rugs, and glancing from the handsome finish of dull mahogany desks. A caller entered the anteroom to a certain bureau chief's den. "Is Mr. K—?" he began.

The clerk was busy at the telephone, and waved a hospitable hand toward a row of empty chairs.

"Just a minute," he said, and then turned again to the telephone. The visitor tried not to overhear, but nevertheless got something like this: "What did Murphy say to that? . . . O, come now. . . . You did? . . . Get out. . . . Not so you'll notice it. The reason was I felt tired and went out for a walk with Murphy. . . . He ought to have it painted on his shirt front. . . . Well, what do you suppose I called you up for—to tell me things like that? . . . I'll tell you tonight."

All of which was so obviously not government business that the caller inwardly wondered at the boldness of the clerk—and that of the girl at the other end of the wire. For minutes were passing, "Murphy" figured again; also some unexplained incident of a shirt bosom and a drug store. The caller blushed, and he read the old mail he kept in his pocket for just such occasions. More minutes passed. "Goodby. . . . What can I do for you, sir?" said the clerk in an unapologetic, business-like tone.

"I should like to see Mr. K—, please."

The clerk smiled.

"He's gone for the day."

Whence the clerk's leisure. Like master, like man—in Washington, D. C., at least.

ERA OF "SHERLOCKING" AT CAPITAL

THE era of investigation has begun in Washington and soon will affect every corner of the United States.

It is impossible to walk around Washington without running across a Sherlock Holmes. There is no branch of the government too inconspicuous to escape attention. The Democrat microscope is being cleaned for use in matters ranging from the action of the president in mobilizing United States troops on the border of Mexico to the sanitary conditions in the public buildings.

The various committees cannot get actively at work in this direction until December, when the estimates for expenses will be submitted by the president, and this affords an opportunity for the resurrection of a number of committees. The investigations these committees will conduct are as follows:

Expenditures in the department of agriculture.
Expenditures in the department of commerce and labor.
Expenditures in the interior department.
Expenditures in the department of justice.
Expenditures in the postoffice department.
Expenditures in the state department.
Expenditures in the treasury department.
Expenditures in the war department.

It is the purpose of some of these committees to ask for additional power which will enable them to extend their investigations beyond the expenditures. In addition, the Democrats desire to investigate the administration pure food law and the operation of the bureau of education.

The railway mail service may be examined, with a view to establishing under what conditions the men work. The postoffice department will be delved into by the postoffice committee, and the Democrats and progressives anticipate some golden campaign finds in that department.

TWO STORIES ON REPUBLICAN LEADER

TWO stories on Jim Mann, Republican leader in the house, have developed recently, and the worst of it is they are both on the Chicagoan. A newspaper man who likes the birds and flowers and knows all about them was walking down town from his home early one morning the other day. He stopped at Iowa circle to look at the crocuses and the forget-me-nots that were poking their heads through the flower plots. He saw another man similarly engaged, except that the other man was more curious and was poking around in the black loam with his walking stick. The newspaper man recognized Mr. Mann.

"Well, I see you are a nature lover, too, Mr. Mann," he said.

"A what?" asked Mann.

"A nature lover."

"Not on your life," answered the minority leader. "I dropped a quarter around here somewhere a minute ago."

Mr. Mann walked out of the White House the other day. Since his elevation to the leadership he has been come secretive and has little to say to the correspondents. The newspaper men nailed him at the door.

"Nothing doing, boys," said Mann, and he placed the tip of his finger to his lips.

At that precise instant a flock of visiting school girls and their teachers loomed into view from behind a bush abutting the path to the executive offices. The girls saw a dignified looking gentleman with a white beard looking directly at them and apparently throwing a kiss. They giggled, they blushed and they retreated.

"The old villain!" muttered the bespectacled teacher.

"He wasn't bad looking, was he?" murmured one of the tenderest of the chickens.

HOW FOALS SHOULD BE PREPARED FOR AND CARED FOR BY THE FARMER

Percheron: Mares and Foals.

By JAMES L. EDMONDS.
University of Illinois.

No other kinds of work on the farm pays so well for the effort expended as vigilant, painstaking care of all classes of young animals. Mistakes made in handling new-born foals often amount to more than the owner's or help's time is worth for several months. On most farms the percentage of loss is much lower in the case of mares foaling after grass has come than previous to that. There are several reasons for this—the mares themselves are in better shape physically, and exercise and sunshine go a long way toward keeping the young foals right. In the case, however, of foals intended for the show ring or race track it is somewhat different; extra good care makes up for the season's inclemency and the added age thus obtained gives them a considerable lead over their later born rivals.

The much asked question as to the best place for foaling has no one answer applying to all existing conditions. The early foal must come in a roomy box stall, made as clean and sweet as proper material and labor will make it. This cleaning should precede the birth of the foal several days. If the floors are of dirt remove the surface for a couple of inches, then apply whitewash liberally (the addition of crude carbolic acid makes it more effective), to walls, ceiling and floor. The chief advantage in using whitewash as a disinfectant lies in the fact that one can see just how thorough his job has been in reaching the corners and cracks. After this part of the cleansing is completed, let the sun and air have a chance for several days. Bed stalls with plenty of clean straw; after the foal is born replace every article of soiled bedding with fresh straw.

Outdoor foaling has its advocates, and generally they back up their statements with evidence of the right sort—a goodly number of rugged foals. Small paddocks, foul with piles of droppings, are no better places for a mare to foal in than filthy loose boxes. A field that is well drained and free from ditches is not excelled as a place for most mares to foal. Mares that produce weak foals, as some of our draft mares do, should be where a closer watch may be had over them. One of the best managed horse farms in the writer's acquaintance, foaling thirty to forty mares a season, has practiced outdoor foaling for twenty-five years without a single loss from "joint ill."

"Joint ill" causes greater loss among young foals than any other disease. Happily this disease may be prevented with proper precaution within the reach of any horse breeder. This disease is due to infection of the system by filth germs entering through the navel. This infection is successfully combated by having the mare foal in a clean place and by disinfecting the stump of the navel twice a day till absolutely all rawness has disappeared, and it is thoroughly healed.

TUBERCULOSIS OF FARM ANIMALS

By CHAS. F. BRISCOE and W. J. MacNEAL.
University of Illinois.

In the early stages of the disease there are no outward manifestations; no fever, nor signs of pain; the animal may be fat and sleek, eat heartily, give plenty of milk and apparently breed as well as an animal free from tuberculosis. If the udder or neck glands are affected, the change in these may be detected earlier, but not often even then until the disease is well advanced. In these cases knots can be felt in the enlarged glands which are hard and painless. It is one of the characteristics of tuberculosis that squeezing upon the tuberculous nodule gives no pain, or much less pain than is usual for such knots found in other diseases. If the larynx, bronchus or lungs are affected a cough is generally noticeable, especially after exercise such as running around the lot for a short time. By placing the ear over the lungs an unusual sound may sometimes be heard—a crackling, bubbling or rasping sound. The breathing is more irregular. Tuberculosis of the uterus or ovaries may cause abortion or sterility, while an involvement of the alimentary tract often causes diarrhea. As the disease advances, even though she may continue to eat a normal amount, the cow loses flesh. The hair becomes rough and loses its luster. The bones become more prominent, the eyes sunken, the ears droop, the head and neck are carried lower, there is a decrease in milk, and the milk becomes blue and thin. In the last stage the animal becomes stiff; in many cases she cannot lie down because of the difficulty in breathing. At this stage a high temperature is often present; progressive emaciation and loss of strength continue until death ensues. Sometimes the disease in the earlier stages may be arrested, the tubercle encapsulated and the cow may live for some time, but complete recovery is probably rare if it really does ever occur in the bovine species.

Summarized statement:
1. The most characteristic thing about tuberculosis is the formation of tubercles as a reaction on the part of the animal tissues.
2. The tubercle bacilli may enter the body through breathing, may be taken in with food and absorbed, and through wounds in the skin.
3. Tuberculosis is called open when the lesions are discharging tubercle bacilli, and closed when a confining membrane retains the organisms in the tubercle.
4. The tubercle bacilli leave the body through the mouth or nose, or in the milk, feces, urine, or genital discharges.
5. Tuberculous animals in the early and moderately advanced stages appear well and active and become emaciated only in the final stages of the disease.

Sheep Pasture.
Sheep, like chickens, need considerable area to run over if the pasture is to remain free from disease.

KIDNEY CHILLS AND BACKACHE.

If, when you get wet or take cold, it "settles on the kidneys" and there is a shivery, chilly sensation in the back, it shows kidney weakness which is often the beginning of serious disease. Doan's Kidney Pills should be used persistently until the backache and other symptoms disappear.

C. D. Kessler, 408 E. 5th St., Mendota, Ill., says: "Kidney trouble came on me about 20 years ago and became so bad I was unable to work for weeks. I was thin, worn out and nervous; the doctors admitted they could not help me and my friends expected me to die. As a last hope I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and shortly after passed a gravel stone. Later on several more stones passed and from then on I improved until cured."

Child's Idea of Goodness Set Forth In Perfect Faith, Without Irreverence.

All things are relative, and to the child, gazing at life and its wonders with eyes as yet undimmed by sophistication or sorrow, nothing is impossible, nothing unspeakable, nothing too sacred to be discussed or too difficult to be attempted. Not irreverence nor impertinence, but innocence prompts such speeches as that recorded of the child of a popular journalist by his devoted paternal grandmother.

"Grandma," said the little boy, delightedly addressing her, "do you know what's going to happen? Papa says that if we're real, real good, he'll take us to the circus?"

"That's nice," smiled the young-hearted adult between whom and the eager youngster no hint of age separation mars perfect comradeship. "How good do we have to be?"

ECZEMA BROKE OUT ON BABY

"When my baby was two months old, she had eczema and rash very badly. I noticed that her face and body broke out very suddenly, thick, and red as a coal of fire. I did not know what to do. The doctor ordered castile soap and powders, but they did no good. She would scratch, and it itched, and she cried, and did not sleep for more than a week. One day I saw in the paper the advertisement of the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, so I got them and tried them at once. My baby's face was as a cake of sores.

"When I first used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, I could see a difference. In color it was redder. I continued with them. My baby was in a terrible condition. I used the Cuticura Remedies (Soap and Ointment) four times a day, and in two weeks she was quite well. The Cuticura Remedies healed her skin perfectly, and her skin is now pretty and fine through using them. I also use the Cuticura Soap today, and will continue to, for it makes a lovely skin. Every mother should use the Cuticura Remedies. They are good for all sores, and the Cuticura Soap is also good for shampooing the hair, for I have tried it. I tell all my friends how the Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured my baby of eczema and rash." (Signed) Mrs. Drew, 210 W. 18th St., New York city, Aug. 26, 1910.

Cuticura Remedies are sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston, Mass., for free booklet on the skin.

Three Great Danish Clans.

The Danish government recently found it necessary to grant heads of families the privilege of changing their names if they feel so disposed without incurring any legal costs. This is a necessary piece of legislation, for the population of Denmark is divided into three great clans—the Hansens, the Petersens and the Soerensens. In one town of 25,000 inhabitants over four-fifths bore one or the other of these names. Many of these have taken advantage of the new law and assumed more distinctive names.

Why Do You Worry?

"Why do I worry? Because I cannot help it. You would worry if you were in my place." How many times has this little conversation been repeated, one friend chiding another for the puffed brow and frowning look, the mood of depression and the anxious, worried, careworn slump of mind and body together, incidental to a habit of worry. True, it is easy to say to one who is overcome by the burdens she is bearing, that worry will make her load no lighter. She knows this, yet while she concedes that worry is doing no good, she goes on as if she were climbing a hill and slipping back at every step or groping through a thick fog, unable to free herself from the smothering clutch of this fiend. Three-fourths of the women patients in a certain insane asylum are said to have reached their morbid estate and the loss of mental balance through the influence of worry. Worry is really waste. It wastes nervous tissue, is the enemy of happiness, and a prolific cause and aggravation of ill health.—Christian Herald.

Symptoms Made to Order.

A young lady who appeared to be in perfect health entered the consulting room of a physician. "Doctor," she said, "is it absolutely essential that I go to Marienbad this year?" "Oh, perhaps not!" the physician replied reassuringly. "Tell me fully your symptoms. What do you expect to cure at the springs?" "That is just what I came to you to find out, doctor," she confessed. "You see, I have got to talk father over. What do you go to Marienbad to be cured of?"

Dream of an Artist.

I mean by a picture, a beautiful, romantic dream of something that never was, never will be—in a light better than ever shone—in a land no one can define or remember, only desire—and the forms divinely beautiful—then I wake up with the waking of Byrnhild.

LATEST CURE FOR "NERVES"

Walking Barefoot on the Sands of the Seashore Advised by Medical Specialist.

Walking barefoot on the sands of the sea is the latest cure for nerves, and well-known medical specialist insists.

"The good qualities of sea sand, which in many ways, is as health-giving as ozone, have been universally overlooked by holiday makers," he said.

"One of the most soothing and beneficial cures a tired business man can obtain is that of walking barefoot on the sand by the seashore."

"The nerves on the sole and ball of the foot are slightly irritated by the small grains of sand, and, so stimulated, setting up an increased circulation of blood throughout the body."

"Mentally this exercise has a most invigorating effect. The nerves of the feet telegraph to the brain, as it were, how comfortable and refreshed they feel, and the brain responds by feeling comfortable and refreshed too."

"If you do not want to walk barefoot wear shoes—not boots—so that the sand may get in over the tops and at your feet."

"Then there is the soothing monotony of the sands. The long, flat stretches of yellow sand have a soporific effect on the mind—they induce a feeling of rest and detachment from the worries of the world."

"Some enterprising man also should open hot seasand baths at some resort, just as there are mud or earth baths at certain German spas. These baths are very beneficial in cases of rheumatism and neuritis."

NO PLACE FOR HIS BUSINESS

Life Insurance Solicitor Was Invited Into a Machine Shop to Do His Talking.

"The toughest experience I ever had in my life," said a life insurance solicitor, "was with an iron manufacturer in Troy. I knew he was wealthy and carried no insurance, so I resolved to tackle him. Upon entering his office and explaining my business, I was surprised at his friendly, even cordial greeting."

"Life insurance," he said. "Well, now, that is a subject that interests me. Come with me to the shop. I've got to go there and you can tell me all about your company." Then he took up his hat and I followed him, until at last he swung open a door. It was the machine shop, and the din was terrible. Hundreds of hammers were all beating iron at once, and I was nearly deafened. Looking at my man I saw his lips move, and leaning forward, I just managed to hear him shout, 'Now, tell me all about it.' He smiled as he said this, and I saw the trick that had been played on me. It was impossible to say a word, so I marched right out of the shop and never went back."

Bookseller Felled With a Book. Tom Osborne, the bookseller, was one of "that mercantile rugged race to which the delicacy of the poet is sometimes exposed."

Osborne, irritated by what he thought an unnecessary delay on the part of Johnson, went one day into the room where Johnson was sitting and abused him in the most illiberal manner.

Johnson heard him some time, unmoved; but at last losing all patience, he seized a huge folio and, aiming a blow at the bookseller's head, succeeded in sending him sprawling to the floor. Osborne alarmed the family by his cries; but Johnson, placing his foot on his breast, would not let him stir till he had exposed him in that situation; and then left him with this triumphant expression: "Lie there, thou son of dullness, ignorance and obscurity."—Kearsley's "Anecdotes."

Caught the Lion's Eye.

A middle aged man stopped in front of one of the lion cages in the Central park menagerie and gazed intently at the head of the old animal that was lying down near the iron bars, prefaces the New York Sun. After keeping his eyes on the inmate of the cage for several minutes he made passes with his hand toward it. The lion's head gradually went down onto his paws and he appeared to be asleep.

"Great is science!" the visitor said. "The books say one can hypnotize any wild beast if near enough to hold his eye while casting the spell, and I have succeeded."

"Hypnotize nothing! That old lion has been blind in his near eye for years," the keeper said.

Youth and Happiness.

Make youth the most attractive period possible—crowd every pleasure and bit of sunshine imaginable into that day for the sorrows will enter all too soon—but in doing so watch the recipient of your favors and sacrifices that he or she does not develop into a selfish boy or girl.

Antiquity of Tobacco.

The idea that tobacco has only been known in Europe since the discovery of America is incorrect. In fact, the Medes and Persians a long time before our era smoked narghiles, as ancient scriptures prove. A philologist has suggested that the Greeks and Romans smoked tobacco at least in their colonies. In the Malay archipelago the use of cigars and cigarettes is said to date much further back than the discovery of America. The word "cigar" seems to show that man's solace and comfort did not originate in the West Indies, but is most likely derived from "sakara," an Arab word meaning smoke.

SUPREME COURT ORDERS WINDUP OF STANDARD OIL

Justices Hand Down a Drastic Decision Disposing of Five- Year Fight to Outlaw the Rockefeller Corporation.

Washington.—The Standard Oil trust must be dissolved. This is the decision of the Supreme court of the United States handed down May 15.

The decision gives victory to the government in its five-year struggle to break up the Rockefeller combine.

The finding of the lower court, that Standard Oil used illegal methods in crushing out competition, is affirmed with only slight modifications. The principal change is the allowance of six months' time for the company to wind up its affairs.

The Supreme court declares that the corporation violated the first and second sections of the Sherman anti-trust law. These relate respectively to restraint of trade and monopolizing and constitute the main basis of the government's case.

The decision was read by Chief Jus-to restrain trade. He said only the question of remedy remained for consideration.

Protection for the Public.

The decree of the lower court was modified so that there need not be "an absolute cessation of interstate commerce in petroleum and its products by such vast agencies as are embraced in the combination, a result which might arise from that portion of the decree which enjoined carrying on of interstate commerce not only by the New Jersey corporation but by all of the subsidiary companies until the dissolution of the combination by the transfer of the stocks in accordance with the decree."

Probably the most important proposition of law laid down in the opinion was that the words in the statute "every restraint of trade" are not to

SAVES LIFE OF GEN. NAVARRO

Provisional President, Ordered Under Arrest by Orozco, Declares Uprising
Incited by Persons Desirous of Bringing About Disunion.

Juarez, Mexico.—Francisco I. Madero, Jr., is complete master of the situation here after the provisional government which he has established had been put to a severe test occasioned by a clash between the military and political authorities.

After a day of thrilling incidents, during which the lives of Madero and his chiefs were in danger, and General Orozco in a moment of passion ordered the arrest of the little rebel leader and demanded the resignation of the provisional cabinet, the capital of the provisional government is quiet.

General Navarro, the defeated federal commander, whose life was threatened by angry mobs of insurgents, was spirited away by Francisco I. Madero himself to the American side of the Rio Grande and is safely ensconced in the home of friends in El Paso.

Provisional President Madero in a statement charged that General Orozco's actions were incited "by persons interested in bringing about disunion among us."

General Orozco called on Madero and the two men talked alone for some time. Suddenly their voices were raised and the other rebel political chiefs rushed into the room only to find themselves held back by some of Orozco's men. A throng of soldiers had gathered outside the building and Madero determined to appeal to them. Six-shotguns had been drawn and rifles leveled, but Madero stood bravely before the crowd and, slapping his breast, shouted, "Shoot me, shoot me, if you dare."

General Orozco was at his side. His men had been summoned to take part in the coup d'état, but as Madero stepped forth among them and talked in his calm, reassuring way the affection which has been ripened among his men since the revolution began crystallized in a mighty shout, "Viva Madero!"

It is apparent that dissension among the military chiefs was the basic cause of the disturbance. Colonel Villa was said to have insisted on General Navarro's life, while General Orozco also was said to have been displeased with the naming of a civilian as minister of war.

St. Louis.—Miss Phoebe W. Couzins, in late years recognized throughout the United States as the leader of her sex against woman suffrage, is stranded at the Terminal hotel, with scarcely enough money to buy her luncheon. For the last few days she has subsisted mostly on bread and water.

Miss Couzins has been at the hotel for more than three weeks and was forced to appeal to friends to lend her enough money to buy a ticket back to Washington. She is more than 60 years old and an invalid. She formerly was United States marshal at St. Louis and has a degree of bachelor of law from Washington university.

Hayward, Wis.—John Dietz, the "outlaw of Cameron dam," was found guilty of murder in the first degree by a jury for the killing of Deputy Sheriff Oscar Harp at the final battle at the Dietz homestead on October 8 last.

He was sentenced by Judge Reld to life imprisonment at hard labor in the penitentiary at Waupun. Dietz' wife and son Leslie, who were on trial with him, were acquitted.

The "outlaw," following the announcement of the verdict, made a dramatic protest that he was a victim of the "lumber trust" and that the death of the deputy sheriff was but an incident in the "trust's" war upon him.

There are other complaints pending against the other members of the Dietz family, but it is thought they will not be prosecuted by the state.

Mrs. Taft is now at the home of Mr. Taft's brother, Henry W. Taft, where she is suffering from a mild recurrence of a nervous malady that appeared in a more serious form two years ago.

It was the intention that Mrs. Taft should accompany the president to Harrisburg. When she was taken ill it was feared that he would be obliged to cancel the engagement, but later Mrs. Taft's condition was such that he was able to make the trip.

At Harrisburg the president spoke on the right of government employees to organize labor unions and to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor.

98% of the World's Creameries Use

DE LAVAL Cream Separators

Ten years ago there were a dozen different makes of creamery or factory separators in use. Today over 98 per cent. of the world's creameries use DE LAVAL separators exclusively.

It means a difference of several thousand dollars a year whether a DE LAVAL or some other make of separator is used in a creamery.

Exactly the same differences exist, on a smaller scale, in the use of farm separators. Owing to the fact, however, that most farm users do not keep accurate records as the creameryman, they do not appreciate just what the difference between a good and a poor separator means to them in dollars and cents. Nine times out of ten the farmer can't tell whether or not he is wasting $50 to $100 a year in quantity and quality of product through the use of an inferior cream separator.

Now, if you were in need of legal advice, you would go to a lawyer. If you were sick you would consult a doctor. If you had the toothache you would call on a dentist. Why? Because these men are all specialists in their line, and you rely upon their judgment and skill. When it comes to buying a separator why not profit by the experience of the creameryman? His experience qualifies him to advise you correctly. He knows which separator will give you the best service and be the most economical for you to buy. That's why 98 per cent. of the world's creameries use the DE LAVAL exclusively.

There can be no better recommendation for the DE LAVAL than the fact that the men who make the separation of milk a business use the DE LAVAL to the practical exclusion of all other makes.

Before you buy any Cream Separator be sure to see the local DE LAVAL agent and try a DE LAVAL.

CHIEF JUSTICE WHITE.

Justice White. Justice Harlan announced a dissenting opinion.

"Our conclusion is," said the chief justice, "that the decree below was right, and should be affirmed except as to the minor matters concerning which we have indicated the decree should be modified. Our order will therefore be one of affirmance, with directions, however, to modify the decree in accordance with this opinion, the court below to retain jurisdiction to the extent necessary to compel compliance in every respect with its decree, and so it is ordered."

Given Six Months to Wind Up.

The court held that the thirty days given by the lower court as the time within which the Standard Oil company was forced to comply with the law was inadequate, and announced that it would grant six months within which the Standard Oil company must be dissolved.

By the reorganization of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, the chief justice said, there was prima facie evidence that there was an endeavor to control and monopolize; that further investigation made this conclusive presumption of an intent to be literally construed, but are to be construed in the light of reason.

On this point the court held that the position of the government that the Supreme court had decided that any qualification of this phrase was precluded by previous decisions of the Supreme court was erroneous.

Oil Suit in Courts Since 1906.

The suit which called forth the oil decision was instituted in 1906 in the United States circuit court for the eastern district of Missouri. It was brought in the name of the United States. The immediate object was to dissolve the Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

From the very beginning the business and the legal worlds recognized that the suit put the Sherman anti-trust law to the most severe test to which it had been subjected. The law had been on the statute book since 1890, and had been the basis of some eighteen suits finally passed on by the Supreme court of the United States.

That the law was constitutional was accepted as settled by these decisions, but simple as the words of the statute seemed, there was an absence of unanimity in regard to its interpretation.

Substitute for Coke Oven.

An important demonstration of the value of high-pressure gas as a substitute for the coke oven was given at the Birmingham Aluminum Casting company's works, the lord mayor, Sir Hollowell Rogers, and other members of the gas committee being present. The company is the first to adopt high-pressure gas for this purpose.

Electric Safety Boiler Cleaner.

A demonstration of the electric safety boiler cleaner was given in London the other day. The idea is the invention of A. Schorr, a German engineer, and consists in the application to the interior of a sealed boiler of a roller studded with chisel points, worked by an electric motor capable of revolving at a speed of as many revolutions as required, which, without any labor on the part of the workman, thoroughly scales the deposit with a minimum of pressure.

If you are in need of medical advice, do not fail to write Professor Munyon. Your communication will be treated in strict confidence, and your case will be diagnosed as carefully as though you had a personal interview.

Munyon's Paw Paw Pills are unlike all other laxatives or cathartics. They coax the liver into activity by gentle methods. They do not scour, they do not grip, they do not weaken, but they do start all the secretions of the liver and stomach in a way that soon puts these organs in a healthy condition and corrects constipation. In my opinion constipation is responsible for most ailments. There are 26 feet of human bowels, which is really a sewer pipe. When this pipe becomes clogged the whole system becomes poisoned, causing biliousness, indigestion and impure blood, which often produces rheumatism and kidney ailments. No woman who suffers with constipation or any liver ailment can expect to have a clear complexion or enjoy good health. If I had my way I would prohibit the sale of nine-tenths of the cathartics that are now being sold for the reason that they soon destroy the lining of the stomach, setting up serious forms of indigestion, and so paralyze the bowels that they refuse to act unless forced by strong purgatives.

Munyon's Paw Paw Pills are a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves. They invigorate instead of weaken; they enrich the blood instead of impoverish it; they enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that is put into it.

These pills contain no calomel, no dope; they are soothing, healing and stimulating. They school the bowels to act without physic.

Regular size bottle, containing 45 pills, 25 cents. Munyon's Laboratory, 53d & Jefferson Sts., Philadelphia.

LABOR CHIEFS FREE

SUPREME COURT DECIDES GOMPERS, MITCHELL AND MORRISON NOT IN CONTEMPT.

TRIO LIABLE TO FINE ONLY

Ruling in Famous Bucks Stove Boycott Is That Proceedings Were Civil and Not Criminal.

Washington.—The Supreme court of the United States set aside the sentences of imprisonment against President Samuel Gompers, Vice-President John Mitchell and Secretary Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor. The sentences were imposed by the district supreme court for contempt in the Bucks stove boycott case. The court decided that the federation officials had been erroneously sentenced to jail on a charge of contempt of a local court.

The justices unanimously held that fines were the only sentences that could be imposed on the labor leaders.

In so holding, the Supreme court of the United States found that the court of appeals of the District of Columbia and the supreme court of the district court in treating the contempt proceedings as a criminal case and not a civil one. The effect of holding the proceedings a civil one was to make jail sentences impossible. Hence the jail sentences had to be set aside.

To correct the error the case was sent back to the local courts, with direction that it be dismissed. At the same time the court expressly made it possible for civil proceedings to be instituted against the labor men.

The court was led to hold that the contempt proceedings in this case must be civil in nature because criminal punishment is exercised by courts to force persons to do acts commanded. In the present case the court took the view that the labor men were being sent to jail not to make them do something the court ordered but because of "something they had done."

Inasmuch as all the differences between the labor men and the complainant have been adjusted, including the "boycott" case out of which the contempt proceedings arose, the decision is probably the last heard of this famous action.

The charges of contempt against Messrs. Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison arose out of a bitter labor war between organized labor and the Bucks Stove & Range company of St. Louis.

The concern had come into the supreme court of the District of Columbia to prevent, by injunction, the American Federation of Labor and its officials from boycotting its own products or the business of those who dealt with it.

The company claimed that the federation was trying to unionize the company's shops. The labor leaders urged that the company was "unfair" to labor. The head of the company was J. W. Van Cleave, president of the National Manufacturers' association, which had often come into conflict with the federation. He was charged with having been opposed to organized labor.

Justice Gould of the district supreme court issued the injunction prayed for by the company, and continued publication of the Bucks firm's name in the federation "we do not patronize" list led to the contempt charges.

Justice Wright found the union officers guilty and sentenced President Gompers to one year in jail; Vice-President Mitchell to nine months, and Secretary Morrison to six months.

It was further charged that in the succeeding number of the Federationist Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison joined in an appeal to organized labor for funds to carry the injunction case to the higher court. It was contended that this appeal was used as a vehicle to continue the boycott.

The charges stated that the appeal referred to an editorial in the same number of the magazine as setting forth the attitude of those making the appeal. This editorial was attributed to Mr. Gompers.

In addition to the "urgent appeal," in which Mr. Mitchell joined, he was accused of having acted in contempt by presiding over the United Mine Workers' convention when it adopted a resolution to fine any member who bought a Bucks stove.

Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Natick, Mass.—"I cannot express what I went through during the change of life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold, I had creepy sensations, and I could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I also had a tumor. I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it had worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish my letter."—MRS. NATHAN B. GREATER, 61 N. Main Street, Natick, Mass.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Husband Who Had "Married Money" Acknowledged the Truth to His Friend's Query.

Apologies of a beautiful young wife, worth $40,000,000, who had just divorced her penniless husband in order to marry again, Henry E. Dixey, the comedian, said at a dinner in New York:

"The young man who marries for money has none too easy a time of it. His rich wife is likely to tire of him and throw him out in a few years, or else she is likely to limit his allowance to 25 or 50 cents a day."

"I married money," a man once said to me.

"Wasn't there a woman attached to it?" I asked.

"Yes, you bet there was," he exploded. "So much attached to it that she never parted with a penny."

Ambiguous. Obliging Shopman (to lady who has purchased a pound of butter)—Shall I send it for you, madam?

Lady—No, thank you. It won't be too heavy for me.

Obliging Shopman—Oh, no, madam, I'll make it as light as I possibly can.—Punch.

Foolish. "I am going to ask your father tonight for your hand in marriage."

"How dreadfully old fashioned you are."

"In what way?"

"Don't ask him; tell him."

The Riddle. The Sphinx propounded a puzzle. "Why does it always rain the day you move?" she asked.

Herewith the ancients gave it up.

A woman's idea of a brave man is one who isn't afraid to go into a dark closet in which there may be a mouse.

IN THE GOOD OLD SUMMER TIME.

Many a time this summer you're going to be just about done out by the heat—hot, and so thirsty it just seems nothing could quench it. When such moments arrive or when you just want a delicious, palate-tickling drink step into the first place you can find where they sell COCA-COLA. It's delicious, refreshing and completely thirst-quenching. At soda-fountains or carbonated in bottles—5c everywhere. Send to the COCA-COLA CO., Atlanta, Ga., for their free booklet "The Truth About COCA-COLA." Tells what COCA-COLA is and why it is so delicious, cooling and wholesome.

To the Childish Mind.

Dorothy Ullman of East Eighty-fourth street, is a very literal young person. To her mother's definition of the All-Seeing Eye she returned a question as to the size of the eye.

"Can God see everything?" she continued.

"Yes, dear. He can see everything, at all times."

That afternoon Dorothy escorted her mother downtown. Before an optician's display she stopped. Then, "Mother," she asked, pointing to the big winking eye in the window: "Is God's eye as big as this?"—Cleveland Leader.

A Poetic Prosecutor.

John Burns, city prosecutor of St. Paul, was trying to show Judge Finehout why some young men ought to be fined for tearing pickets off the fence of Mrs. Joe Giesick. Mr. Burns said:

"I know Mike Chicklet tore off that picket, and the lady took offence."

"No lady is charged with taking a fence," replied Judge Finehout, "and, besides, this is no place for poetry."

Age of Oysters.

Oysters grow only during the summer and especially during the long, warm summer at that, and are scarcely big enough for the month before the third year. It is easy after looking over a bunch of shells to tell how old an oyster is. A summer hump and the winter sink come across the shell every year, but after the seventh or tenth year full growth comes; then, by looking at the sinks between the humps it is hard to tell anything more about Miss Oyster's age. Oysters live to be twenty years old.

"Kicking the Bucket."

When we speak facetiously of some one of whom we have no reverence as having "kicked the bucket," we employ a phrase that would seem to be a piece of latter-day slang, but as a matter of fact, it dates back to old England, when, about the year 1725, one Bolsover hung himself to a beam while standing on the bottom of a bucket and then kicked the bucket away. Although at first used only in cases of suicide, it has been applied in the course of years to any death without distinction.

Planning the House.

"Well," said Gifford Berrington, cheerfully, "I've got the plans for my new house on the lake shore all finished."

"Finished to suit you?"

"No-no. But the architect is satisfied, and that's the best I can expect."

"Ha, ha! How about Mrs. Berrington?"

"It's all right with her, too. In fact, she got that fixed before we started. You see, she laid out the cupboards and wardrobes, and all the architect had to do was to build a house around them."

Better Done in Private.

A well-known doctor, we read, advises people to roll the eyes in order to strengthen the eye-muscles. A little risky, perhaps; for if this exercise were carelessly practiced in crowded restaurants and other public places, the eye would stand a good chance of being suddenly blackened.

To Save Time.

He simply couldn't help it. He was born lazy. As a rule, if not sleepy, he could get through a shave in about 35 minutes. But today, after only 14 hours' sleep, he appeared even more sluggish than ever. As he applied the lather to his customer's beard, his brush lingered haltingly, as though loath to leave the stubby chin to which it was being applied. The customer was a patient man, and stood this for a considerable while. But at last his patience began to ooze, and he interrupted a 40 winks' interval with a cough.

"S'ere, lad," he suggested. "Aa've an idea. Haud your hand, keep the brush still, an' Aa'll wag ma head for ye!"

Farming Annoyance.

One of Abe Martin's sayings was this: "The hardest thing a farmer does, next to plowin', is givin' half the road to a touring car."

TALE OF GRAFT IN NEW YORK

New Man in Office Who Ignorantly Demanded $500 and Might Have Had $15,000.

This is a little story of New York graft, according to the New York correspondent of the Cincinnati Times-Star. Unfortunately, the names may not be used. But it has been the custom of a corporation in this city to pay a sort of retaining fee to the holder of a certain political office, just to be let alone. The corporation heads did not ask anything else from the officeholder. They merely did not want to be prodded by crusades which presumably had an origin in a desire for reform. The graft payment for years had been $10,000. "We'll likely have to pay more, now that So-and-so is in office," said they, when a certain man was elected. "He has the name of being very grasping."

So they sent an intermediary to the newly elected officeholder, with power to negotiate. They were willing to pay $15,000, if necessary, but not a penny more. The usual preliminaries were gone through. "Your company will have to come over," said the officeholder. "I'm no cheap man. I know you've been paying right along, and you'll have to pay me more than you have been giving up to this office in the past. When I go grafting I go right." And he swelled up and looked very important. The intermediary was frightened. He asked very humbly how much the officeholder would demand.

"Not a penny less than $500 a year," said the officeholder, sternly. The sum was paid, and it was not until the officeholder had been out of office for months that he learned the scale on which previous payments had been made. The information actually sent him into a decline. He grieved so over it that he really lost his health. If one mentions a large sum of money in his presence nowadays he's apt to burst into tears.

Decision Reversed.

The cook, who had held sway long enough to be established as family autocrat, was sent out to buy the Christmas turkey. She returned with two fine, plump chickens. "Why, Mary," her mistress remonstrated, "I told you to get a turkey, not chickens." "I know, mum," she answered, "but I don't like turkey."—Success Magazine

Cooking Hint.

Whenever you are baking cookies pin a piece of muslin over the bread board, stretching it tight. Flour the muslin well, and you can roll the dough as soft and thin as you please. A piece of muslin around the rolling pin is another improvement.

We present, at last, the car of values which none can surpass at the same or near the price at which this is offered. This excellent product should be received with such enthusiasm as was the runabout two years ago. Careful examination will bring to light the completeness of the car's details and also its sturdy construction. The heart of this attractive car is none other than the famous 20 h. p. Hupmobile unit power plant with the ability to negotiate steep grades "on high." The chassis is a lengthened edition of that of the runabout with a frame increased in strength to meet the new demands placed upon it. Value is so apparent in this car at $900 that it should not even need the help of this adv. to sell every car we could make. We want you to become acquainted with our representative. Waste no time, secure a satisfying demonstration at the earliest date possible. There has been nothing quite so good since the debut of our first runabout. One of the features of the car is its easy riding qualities and ample leg room is provided for the tallest person. The car is not what could be termed "high powered" for with an excess of power the running expense would increase. It has ample power and can be operated at small expense.
